

WIGMORE HALL
Learning

Postgraduate Certificate in Music and Dementia: Wigmore Hall in partnership with the University of Roehampton

We are happy to announce an exciting new development as part of Music for Life, our pioneering project working with people living with dementia. In collaboration with the University of Roehampton, we will be offering training on Music for Life projects as part of a new Postgraduate Certificate in Music and Dementia.

The course will be run by Roehampton as part of their Music Psychology programme and will involve a mixture of taught and practical modules. The course is aimed at professional musicians (of degree level, or equivalent, and above) who either work in, or are interested in working in community music environments, with a specific interest in working with people living with dementia.

We are now taking applications for the first cohort of students to start the course in the autumn term of 2013. If you are interested in applying, or would like to find out more, please contact Kate Whitaker, Music for Life Project Manager, at kwhitaker@wigmore-hall.org.uk, or Dr Nigel Marshall at the University of Roehampton at n.marshall@roehampton.ac.uk. The course can be found at <http://www.roehampton.ac.uk/Research-Centres/Applied-Music-Research-Centre/Courses/> and more details will be added shortly.

The deadline for applications will be 3 July 2013, with auditions and interviews taking place on 17 July 2013.

Music for Life was founded by Linda Rose in 1993 and developed together with an expanding team of musicians in association with Jewish Care. Music for Life is now managed by Wigmore Hall.

Music for Life is supported by: The Milton Damerel Trust, The Rayne Foundation, The Sampimon Trust, S E Franklin Charitable Trust No. 3, Hyde Park Place Estate Charitable Trust, George Meyer, Valerie O'Connor & Jeanette McIntosh, Rothschilds, Mary Luise Waldeck, City of Westminster and several anonymous donors

Supported using public funding by
ARTS COUNCIL
ENGLAND